

CREATIVE WRITING – Andrea Pinto (Group E)

This week we were asked to produce a 150 word horror based story. On Monday we did multiple tasks to get our creative ideas flowing. This included creating a character and their background story. Furthermore we created story that involved a conflict featuring our character we created in lesson. I think this was really stimulating and made us work with others and bring together our ideas.

This homework task was quite pleasant since I've always been a horror fan whether it's movies/anime or manga. Junji Ito is a one of the first authors I've read for horror manga his stories are fascinating and I'm a big fan so he's a great source of inspiration. I also read up on quite a few examples of 150 word stories since I acknowledge that sometimes I struggle writing with such a limit. For my main source of inspiration for this weeks homework I used a nightmare that I've had in the past and was lying around in my notes which I decided to develop into a story. There wasn't much to develop since I already had a basis to my story but since it was a 150 word story I was hoping to at least write another one as na alternative.
